

The State of Hawaii, Department of Accounting & General Services, Public Works Division (“Department”) created this Design Consultant Criteria Manual (DCC Manual) to guide, assist, and instruct the Department’s design professional consultants and others who are engaged by the Department to design and provide construction administrative services for the Department’s projects; by agreeing to design or provide construction administrative services for these projects, such individuals represent that they are competent to do so, appreciate the significance and limitations of the Manual’s contents, and accept responsibility for the application of the Manual’s contents.

USE AND TERMS: The Design Professional Consultant (“consultant”) is authorized to use the DCC Manual, provided, the Manual is used only to produce design and construction documents and specifications for State projects that are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Accounting and General Services. The DCC Manual in either its hardcopy or electronic form (CD) is on loan to the consultant, and ownership of the DCC Manual, and all rights thereto, remain with the Department.

The consultant may network the information contained in the DCC Manual so long as all use is limited to the consultant’s single address that is in our files.

The consultant shall not allow access to the DCC Manual to anyone outside of its organization, or otherwise copy or distribute any portions of the DCC Manual unless such copying or distribution of the information is done solely and exclusively for the purposes of designing or constructing a single construction project for the Department. The Department shall not be held liable in any way for any unauthorized use of the DCC Manual.

DISCLAIMER: The Department makes no representation or warranty as to the completeness or accuracy of the information contained in the Technical Guide Specifications of the DCC Manual. Information provided in the Manual about various materials, products, systems, or applications is to be considered by the consultant as just one of many sources of information, and on the condition that the consultant will make its own determination as to the suitability of a particular item, system, or process, for a particular purpose. Nothing presented in the DCC Manual is to be construed as a recommendation to use any particular material, product, manufacturer, process, system, or application.
